DIARY NOTES

23 November 1964

1. Bob Bannerman and I previewed the Office of Security presentation on the polygraph program. While they have made a good beginning, they require considerable reorientation in their approach to the problem. (They will be ready for another preview sometime within the next few days.)

2. [REDACTED] I was up to talk with me about the possibility of assigning [REDACTED] as Commanding Officer of the [REDACTED] Center. I told him that I would not favor this assignment and thought that for the foreseeable future we should plan to keep [REDACTED] in this job. I did say, however, that I would have no objection whatever to placing [REDACTED] in charge of the communications activities at [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] agreed with this logic and will probably move in this direction.

3. I asked Alan Warfield to give me a status report on our business to [REDACTED]

4. Bob Bannerman and I attended a luncheon given by [REDACTED] for [REDACTED]. In the course of the luncheon we talked with Tracy briefly about [REDACTED]. Apparently Tracy is quite deeply committed to [REDACTED] and refusing to permit his employment by the [REDACTED] would cause some embarrassment. Tracy proposed that we give [REDACTED] a polygraph test and that if he comes clean we go ahead with his contract with the very definite and clear understanding that any additional misconduct on his part will be grounds for automatic termination. Bob and I said that this sounded all right but that we would like to defer final judgment until we pull together all our information and review it with Tracy.
